FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Community Action Agencies Now Accepting Energy and Heating Assistance Applications

(Middletown) – The Connecticut Community Action Agency (CAA) Network is now accepting energy assistance applications for the 2021-2022 heating season.

Connecticut residents who need assistance paying their utility bills and primary heating costs can apply for energy assistance at their local CAA. Community Action Agencies are the only nonprofit agencies administering the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) in all 169 cities and towns. LIHEAP is a federal program (administered by the Connecticut Department of Social Services) that provides home heating assistance to the state’s most vulnerable residents. In Connecticut this program is called the Connecticut Energy Assistance Program (CEAP).

Each CAA has application intake sites throughout their service regions, including some local town halls. Customers should check with their local CAA via the number below for a complete site listing, to make an application appointment, and confirm required documentation they will need to bring. Homeowners and/or renters may apply, and funds may be used to pay for whatever source of heating residents have in their homes. This includes oil, natural gas, electricity, propane, kerosene, coal, wood, and wood pellets. CAAs will certify deliveries beginning in November.

For more information on Connecticut’s Energy Assistance Program and how to find your local CAA to apply, visit www.cafca.org or call the Connecticut Association for Community Action (CAFCA) at (860) 832-9438. Each CAA’s energy department below contact number is below.
